HAE is NOT an allergic reaction

Call 999 immediately if you notice:

Hoarse voice or laryngitis, whistling or wheezing when breathing, shortness of breath or swelling to the lips, tongue, face or throat.

Swelling of the larynx (i.e., the voicebox in the throat) can be life-threatening and requires immediate medical treatment.

What is hereditary angioedema (HAE)?

HAE can cause various parts of my body to swell up and when this happens, I may need treatment to bring down the swelling.

Symptoms may include:

- Sudden swelling of the hands & feet
- Sudden facial swelling with tension sensation
- Tongue swelling
- Eyelid swelling, lip swelling, possibly laryngeal (voice box) swelling with difficulty in breathing
- Abdominal pain
